My wife and I send our condolences to Dave's family. I've known Dave for nearly 40 years. I worked for him as an apprentice, journeyman, and sub-foreman, and he even worked on a job for me. We became good friends through our mutual love of the outdoors. We spent many hours fishing for Bass on the Potomac River, as well as hunting turkeys, squirrels and deer throughout the hardwood forests of Southern Maryland. Thirty years ago, Dave had to convince me that you didn't need a "live worm" to catch bass. I haven't fished with a "live worm" since then. We took our share of the fish and wildlife, and had many stories to retell and laugh about.

Dave was a very serious man when it came to work. Some considered him "tough", but he just expected everyone to give an honest day's work. He had the same "serious" attitude toward things off work. He strived to be the best he could at learning anything: archery, fishing, hunting, boating, breeding show dogs or whatever he decided to do. Everything Dave did was self-taught, and Dave expected no less from himself than he did of others.

I'm going to miss Dave, especially on warm summer mornings out on Mattawoman Creek, trying to entice those Largemouth Bass to take a plastic worm. You know..."you're not gonna can't catch nuthin' on one of those things".

Goodbye Dave, I'm glad we were friends.
