Mr. Hill was one of my customers many years ago, when I worked in banking. He would make it a point to wait for me to help him. We would just have small talk about his work week went. Occasionally, I would get a smile out of him. After I left the world of banking, I had ran into Mr. Hill out at AutoZone one day, we chatted for a bit as if no time had gone by. To Mr. Hill's family, I'm sorry for your loss.
