“ Dad(Joe) Met and married our mom when I was very young. He was an awesome dad ... and he raised me. I was deeply saddened when Alzheimer's took his memory of me, but he is at peace and rest now, and he's with our Ramona Grace and momma, and his Momma and Papa Borrás, and Ruby and Doyle, so many other loved ones' souls. He's in a good place. Love you, Dad. Always...

Earlier this week, we lost Steven Matthew Brinson to accidental death. Steve was dad's step grandson, but loved as one of his own. Reminds me of what a wonderful man dad was and how sad I am that there are not more notes on his memory page... Lots of still living folks were able to attend dad's memorial and celebrate his life. And now Steve can say "Hey, Grandpa Joe!" himself. And somewhere in there, maybe even Bob King is grabbing a hand and pulling 'em in for a hug (though Bob wasn't much of a hugger, God rest his soul. Bob was my brother-in-law and his heart stopped beating (literally) this January.

Knocked to our knees with all these deaths, but enduring.

Reminds me of dad enduring so stoically and so strong when Ramona was killed in 2003. Joe Borrás was a giant among "regular guy" men. Talented paste-up man who helped produce the Time Life book series on Baseball, The Civil War, Gardening, Gourmet Cooking, and so on -- he gave each of us kids a full set as gifts. I received the gardening set and will treasure it always.

“ Joe was Assistant Scoutmaster while I was Scoutmaster. He assisted me with Cub Scouts, too, as Webelo Den master. He was a very good friend and I know he will be solely missed. Philip Rovenolt
