“ I worked for Mr. Olcott. He had a warehouse in Waldorf, the store in Arlington, both of which I worked at. I also painted his house one summer down by Marshall Hall. He taught me some valuable life lessons. Also he paved the way for me to work at Tasco next door. Being all of seventeen I thought it strange then that he didn't have any children. I am now 61, childless, and see now how choices made in one's youth can be for a lifetime. That was a special time in my life and thanks to Joseph Olcott I was introduced to situations I might not have been if it wasn't for his kindness.

I hope you experieced God's power in your life Mr. Olcott. So maybe we'll see each other again.
