They were married for 42 years and each year my father gave her red roses for the good years and one yellow rose for the bad. Her rose garden was comprised of all red roses and one day a yellow rose bush started growing out of nowhere. I always felt it was a sign sent from heaven so she would always remember.

“ I knew Nioma as "Mee Maw" for over 50 years. Her son, Danny, was one of my dearest friends and all of the Springstons made me feel like part of the family. My life has been better for having known you, and I'll always remember your sweet nature and your love of Hank Williams music! Rest in peace, Mee Maw. ❤️
