“Shaquille, the pain of your loss is unfathomable. I have always heard of broken Hearts, but I am experiencing the never-ending pain of one each night and day. The family is in a state of disbelief resulting from this cowardly act of violence. I want you to know that I am so happy and proud that you came home to us in order to reset your life. You found a job and was considering returning to school, You showed a determination that required courage and bravery. Your undeniable and infinite LOVE for your daughter manifested itself as you were willing to walk through the gates of HELL, literally to let her know that you love her and will always be part of her life. It is this simple but powerful expression of love that resided in you that if was shared by all would bring Gods light to the earth and into the hearts of everyone that profess to love you. Now you are with your mother, my lovely wife in heaven with God. The family will endeavor forward in this life until we are together again. Rest in peace my dear son - from your family.

Shaquille, I would have never thought I would be writing such a post at this. I want you to know that you will truly be missed. You are in the best place resting in the master's arm. We thank God for your time here on earth. I speak peace over the family. I pray God continues to keep the family. Family while this is a difficult situation God makes no mistakes! I'm so glad we don't have to walk this journey in life on our own and the master walks with us. He had other plans outside of our control. Shaquille I'm so glad you were restoring your life here on earth and God will finish the work in heaven. I know you are rejoicing with your mom right now!! Shaquille, until we meet again, you will truly be missed. Love your cousin Leaie
