“ I don't know where to begin. I am at a loss for words. Over the years I thought so much about you and wondered what became of you. I tried so hard to find you. Our memories go back to school days when we were 2 hard-headed kids who thought we knew it all and the world was ours. You were like my sister, when things went wrong you would come over and like your big sister we would talk about it and then go do something fun to get your mind off your worries. At one point you had left the area and years later we ran across eachother and it was like you never left. Then life came along and we lost contact but I never forgot about you. I am so sorry that I did not try harder to find you; if for no other reason than just to let you know that I valued the friendship we had. It's funny that over the years of searching for you I had no luck but roaming through FaceBook tonight, I come across a page where I read the words RIP Teedy so I researched harder to find out was it you. Well, I know it was God letting me know that you were gone home and have earned your wings. You are now God's beautiful Angel and all I can say is Soar High!!!! You will always be in my heart as that beautiful friend I once knew...

“ Ill never forget the way you always made me laugh. I thought you were an angel on earth and I know youll be an angel in heaven!!!!!!!!!!!!..... Just found out earth lost an angel so how do you talk to an angel? How do you hold them close to where you are. It's kind like trying to catch a falling star.
