“ Its been a few days after the 1st year anniversary you left me and others. I went to the grave and put down flowers for you to show my respect and show you the remarkable impact you made in my life. I know you told me that when you departed from here you would be forgotten but I know I speak for myself and I'm sure for others you were to special and an amazing person to not be remembered. You believed in me when no one else did at a time in my life that I needed it the most. I still do but I have the memories the pictures the garden we designed and made into my joy in the teamwork we had together, and the cards I treasure with every word it said and you wrote. You pushed me to have gumption in life which has helped me tremendously this past year to keep getting up and fighting to make something of myself even when the odds are against me. Thank you for your time, your conversations, and your friendship. I'll love you forever and I'll tell about it when I see you again!!!! My family sends their love too

“ Danny today marks one month since you left me. You were my best friend you pushed me to not settle and to have gumption in life. I miss you so much. Its so hard to start my days off knowing i'm not going to see you. You added so much value to my life and you believed in me when I was lost. I wish I could have done more. Its even hard to go to church knowing your not coming there to sit with me. I went to your gravesite and laid down to talk it felt as if your presence was there. A little piece of my heart is missing and I will never forget what you did for me. I love you you will forever be my best friend.
