“ There are no words that can heal the brokenness I feel right now! I remember when I was a little girl, I let my Granny's dog Papparika off his chain outside so I could pretend I was a singer. My Dad came home and there I stood belting out my tunes. He stopped in his tracks asking me where the dog was and I told him I had to let him go because I was late for my show. He looked at me and asked me if I was shit simple, I told him no remember I am your daughter Tammie. I was not even four years old:((

“ Billy and Allen were older than me. They sometimes came with their sister, Irma, to visit her in-laws (my grandparents.) We lived next door and one evening they were visiting while I was staying with my grandparents. I had a new puppy and wanted to show it to them. We started down the path leading to my house and there in the middle of the path was Momma Skunk and her little ones. Billy and Allen decided we should catch one of the babies for a pet. We each headed after a little skunk yelling and laughing. You can just imagine what happened next. Who knew little skunks could shoot their stink that far. Fortunately for me I didn't get sprayed, however, Billy and Allen didn't fair so well. We all learned a valuable lesson that night.

“ He was my DAD...and every child growing up that new him referred to him as “uncle bill” even though some were not even related they felt comfortable enough with him and all of his family to do so. My dad was very kind to all until you made him upset then he called you Fool I think that was his favorite word
 Fool your crazy!
 Fool you missed that crab here let me do it!
 Fool I said not that much Bacardi in my coke!
 Fool give it here!
 “I will truely miss that fool”❤️😞
